2. What are Infotypes?

An infotype is an information unit used to maintain master data related to human resource management systems (HRMS). An infotypes contains a four-digit code with a related name and is capable of maintaining employee data. Infotypes are capable of handling human resource (HR) information, which is often time-sensitive.

Infotypes allow users to conveniently maintain and retrieve HR information, while providing the consistency check required for a HRMS by auto-checking entries with preset values and conditions.

5.1. IT0001 Organizational Assignment

The Organizational Assignment infotype incorporates the employee into the organizational structure and the personnel structure.

This data is very important for the authorization and control of Payroll .

The Organizational Assignment infotype has the time constraint 1 , which means that an infotype data record must exist in the system at all times as of the date on which the employee is hired.

iManual published by United Nations DOS/CDOTSPDF version of the manual may become outdated. Please always consult this site to get the most updated information.

Page 80 of 606

5.2. IT0002 Personal Data

The Personal Data infotype stores data for identifying an employee/applicant.

Name formatting enables you to control how the employee's or applicant's name appears in the output (for example, "known as" first name instead of first name, without title).

The Personal Data infotype has the time constraint 1, which means that an infotype data record must exist in the system at all times as of the date on which the employee is hired.

The validity start for the first record of the Personal Data infotype is determined from the employee's/applicant's date of birth.

Marital Status/Religion

The Personal Data infotype has the time constraint 1, which means that an infotype data record must exist in the system at all times as of the date on which the employee is hired.

Note

Because the individual family members do not have to be recorded in the system, a check is not run to see whether the number of children entered in the Family/Related Person (0021) infotype corresponds with the number of children entered in the No. Children (number of children) field in the Personal Data infotype (0002).

5.3. IT0006 Addresses

In the Addresses infotype, you store the address data of an employee/applicant. The employee's address is used in conjunction with the employee's/applicant's name, taken from the Personal Data infotype, for employee lists of different kinds, for forms, or for address labels.

You can enter different addresses for each employee. The standard system contains the following address types as subtypes:

- Permanent residence
- Temporary residence
- Home address
- Emergency address
- Mailing address
- Nursing address

There are different entry screens for the Address infotype for the individual country versions. When you create an address, the system chooses the country-specific entry screen that corresponds to the country of the personnel area to which the employee/applicant is assigned in the Organizational Assignment infotype..

5.4. IT0007 Planned Working Time

This infotype stores data pertaining to the staff member's work schedule.
This infotype cannot be skipped.

It consists of the two following sections:
• Work schedule rule – this section displays the staff member's weekly working schedule and start day of the week (different duty stations have different start days).
• Working time – this section is not editable and indicates the number of working hours and days for all Staff Members.

5.5. IT0008 Basic Pay

You can store the employee's basic pay in the Basic Payinfotype (0008). You can get an overview of the employee's payroll history using the infotype history.

When an employee leaves a company you are not permitted to delimit the Basic Payinfotype (0008). Basic payroll data must remain in the system. This is the only way of ensuring the accuracy of any retroactive accounting runs that need to be performed.

The standard system contains the following payment types as subtypes:

- Basic contract
- Increase basic contract
- Comparable domestic pay
- Refund of costs in foreign currency
- Local weighting allowance

You can process the Basic Payinfotype (0008) on its own or with a personnel action. If you want to create a new data record, enter the payment type on the Maintain HR Master Data screen. The payment type is already set if you carry out a personnel action.

If you copy a data record, the values in the Pay Scale Type , Pay Scale Area , Capacity Utilization Level, and Work Hours/Period fields are redetermined and not copied, depending on the Use Default Values for Infotypes feature (DFINF) . However, the values in the Capacity Utilization Level and Work Hours/Period fields are copied if the values in the old data record do not match the default values at that time.

Pay Scale
The system automatically proposes the Pay Scale Type and the Pay Scale Area . However, you can overwrite these values.

You always have to specify the Pay Scale Group and Pay Scale Level together. You can create pay scale groups and the related pay scale levels in Customizing for Personnel Administration by choosing Payroll Data Basic Pay Revise Pay Scale Groups and Levels .

iManual published by United Nations DOS/CDOTSPDF version of the manual may become outdated. Please always consult this site to get the most updated information.

Wage types

If you want to insert a data record, the system automatically suggests the wage types. There are a few wage types which you cannot overwrite or delete:

Indirectly valuated wage types may not be overwritten, since this would cause the indirect valuation to be lost.

For indirect valuation, a data record of the Planned Working Time infotype (0007) must be created for the employee.

The Amount of indirectly valuated wage types is only displayed and not saved.

You can enter up to 40 wage types for each employee. You can specify the number of wage types in the Planned Payment Specification feature (LGMST) in Customizing. If fewer permitted wage types are defined in Customizing, fewer rows are available in the infotype.

The sum total of payments (Total Amount) is calculated by the system. All wage types that according to the settings in Customizing are to be included in the sum total are flagged in the Add.Total field (Add to Sum Total) .

5.6. IT0009 Bank Details

In the Bank Details infotype (0009) you enter the payee and the bank details for the net pay from the payroll or the travel expenses.

When you create a new data record, the system takes the employee's or applicant's name from the Organizational Assignment infotype (0001) for the payee's name. It takes the postal code and the city from the Addresses infotype (0006). However, the payee and the employee or applicant do not have to be identical.

The standard system contains the following bank detail types as subtypes:

- Main bank*
- Other bank*
- Travel expenses

When you enter other bank details or bank details for travel expenses, to distribute the payment amount to several payees, specify the amount to be transferred as an absolute value or as a percentage. In the case of travel expenses, the amount is an optional specification.

5.9. IT0016 Contract Elements

In the Contract Elements infotype, you can store data related to the employee's employment contract.

Contractual Regulations

With the Contract type field, you can subdivide contracts of employment in accordance with the planned duration of the work relationship and the employee's legal status.

You can or must also record the following information here:

- For temporary work relationships, you must enter the contract's end date (valid until).
- You can set the Sideline Job indicator if the employee is authorized to have a sideline job.
- You can set the Comp. Clause indicator, if the employee's contract contains a corresponding provision. The non-competition clause refers to the time after termination of employment. It defines any job restrictions that may be imposed on the employee and how these are compensated by the enterprise.

Payment Period from Beginning of Illness

The Continued pay and the Sick pay supplement periods are used for certain absences in the Absences infotype (2001). The default values for both periods are defined in Customizing and can be overwritten here.

The special rule enables you to control different continued pay and sick pay supplement periods in the Collective Agreement for the Public Sector (BAT – Germany).

Periods

Here you store all periods relevant for labor legislation and the employee's contract:

- Probation period length
- Notice periods for employer and employee
- Date on which the work permit expires

Entry

You can save an entry date in the Initial entry field that is different than the contract's start date and information on the corporation to which the employee belongs.

> When you first create a record for the Contract Elements(0016) infotype for the first time, the system suggests default values for the following fields:
> - Contract type
> - Continued pay
> - Sick pay
> - Probation period
> - Notice period for ER
> - Notice period for EE
> The default values are determined by the entries for the company code, personnel area, employee group and employee subgroup in the Organizational Assignment infotype.

5.10. IT0017 Travel Privileges

In infotype 0017 Travel Privileges you specify the control parameters for the travel expenses for each employee, such as travel costs and the statutory and enterprise-specific reimbursement group for accommodation and meals.

Travel privileges control elements such as the reimbursement amounts the settlement program applies and which receipts can be recorded for the employee.

The travel privileges are part of the master data of Travel Expenses. You must set up this infotype for SAP Travel Planning because the use of Travel Expenses provides the necessary integration with Accounting and Human Resources.

5.11. IT0019 Monitoring of Tasks

This is an infotype with which you can create automatic monitoring of tasks for all HR activities that have follow-up activities. Depending on the selected task type, the system proposes a date on which you will be reminded of the stored tasks. This enables you to implement the follow-up activities on schedule.

The standard system contains the following task types as subtypes:

- Expiry of probation
- Temporary contract
- Pay scale jump
- Work permit
- Severe challenge
- Training period
- Dismissal protection
- Expiry of inactive contract
- Expiry of temporary contract
- Personal interview
- Vaccination date
- End of maternity protection
- End of maternity leave
- Start of maternity protection
- Follow-up medical
- Submit SI statement
- Submit AHV-ID
- Prior attachment
- Next appraisal*
- Work permit expires*
- End of leave of absence*

Reminder Date

The reminder date is the date on which you want to be reminded of the task.

You can determine the reminder date in two ways:

- You can enter the reminder date directly.

iManual published by United Nations DOS/CDOTSPDF version of the manual may become outdated. Please always consult this site to get the most updated information.

- If the operation indicator for the relevant task type has the value Blank or – (Minus) in Customizing, then the reminder date cannot fall after the actual task.

- If the operation indicator has the value + (Plus), then the reminder date cannot fall before the task.

- The system suggests a default date independently of the task type.

This date can be overwritten at any time.

5.12. IT0021 Family Member/Dependents

This infotype allows you to store data concerning the employee's family members and other related persons.

The standard system contains the following relationship types as subtypes:

- Spouse
- Divorced spouse
- Father
- Mother
- Domestic partner
- Domestic partner's child
- Child
- Legal guardian
- Testator
- Guardian*
- Stepchild*
- Emergency contact*
- Related persons

Personal Data

Using the employee data, the system defaults entries for the following fields:

- Last Name
- Gender
- Name Prefix (if applicable)
- Nationality

You can change these default values as required.

Because the individual family members do not have to be recorded in the system, a check is not run to see whether the number of children entered in this infotype corresponds with the number of children entered in the

5.14. IT0027 Cost Distribution

This infotype allows you to determine how costs for an employee are to be distributed to different account assignment objects. For more information, see the following section in the Payroll documentation:

Subtypes are used to differentiate between costs that should be distributed. The standard system contains the following costs as subtypes:

- Subtype 01: Wage/Salary
- Subtype 02: Travel Expenses
- Subtype 10: Planned Cost Distribution
- Subtype 11: Planned Effort
- Subtype 12: Proposed Cost Distribution
- Subtype 13: Proposed Effort
- Cost Distribution

By entering a value in the Distr. field, you determine the costs to which cost distribution refers.

You determine the cost distribution with entries in the following fields:

- CoCd (Company Code)
- Cost Center
- Order
- WBS Element
- Perc. (Percentage Rate)

If the total sum of distributed costs is less than 100%, the master cost center of the employee is debited for the outstanding amount.

5.15. IT0041 Date Specifications

You can record the following information in the Date Specifications infotype. The Date type specifies the type of information.

A concrete Date type (specified by the user) is used in a series of reports, for example to evaluate an entry date that cannot be derived from the organizational assignment history but which is stored in the Date Specifications infotype(0041).

This infotype can be used in payroll as well as for the leave program.

Date Specification

The standard system contains twelve combinations of Date type and Date. If you require more than twelve date specifications for an employee at the same time, you can use time constraint 3 .

Make an entry either in both fields or none of the fields.

5.16. IT0045 Loans

This infotype is an infotype in which the HR master data for company loans is stored.

Use

Payroll calculates the following values using data from this infotype and the information stored in Customizing:

- Loan repayment
- Loan interest calculation
- Imputed income taxation

Loan Identification

The loan types are stored as subtypes in the Loans infotype (0045). Every loan that you create receives a sequential number. The combination of loan type and sequential number makes it possible for the system to uniquely identify every loan. This makes it possible for you to create several loans of the same type for an employee.

The system proposes a sequential number based on your procedure.

Create a new infotype record to create a new loan. The system proposes the next available sequential number for the new infotype record here.

Copy the existing infotype record to change the repayment installment for an existing loan. The system proposes the sequential number of the infotype record that has been copied for the new infotype record here. For more information, see Edit Loans in the "Changing the Interest Rate, Repayment Installment or Annuity Installment section".

Basic Data

In the Loans infotype (0045), you enter all the basic data for a company loan, for example, the approval date and amount of the loan. The system also displays the loan balance. This data must correspond in all the loan infotype records.

iManual published by United Nations DOS/CDOTSPDF version of the manual may become outdated. Please always consult this site to get the most updated information.

However, payments and special repayments that you entered after the last payroll run are not included in the loan balance.

Conditions

For each company loan, you specify which loan conditions apply. You also determine the repayment installment amount and the start date of the repayments. Regardless of the repayment start date, interest payments are included in the payroll run, immediately after the loan is paid to the employee by payroll.

You can see loan condition details of the current infotype record in the overview of conditions.

Interest occurs in every payroll period. The interest pattern determines the intervals at which the employee must pay the cumulated interest. The loan type determines whether the overview of conditions displays the interest pattern. For an installment loan, the interest and repayment pattern are displayed. In the case of an annuity loan, only the repayment pattern is displayed, since the interest is due at the same time as the repayments.

Loan Payments

In the Loans infotype (0045), you enter all the payments that are made by your company or employee with regard to the loan. This includes outgoing payments, repayments, and other payments, for example, loan charges.

You can pay a maximum of the approved amount to the employee. You can also issue the approved amount in several partial amounts. The approval of a loan does not automatically lead to payment. You must create the loan payment explicitly.

Use different Payment Types to create payments.

Subsequent changes to payments that have already been settled trigger retroactive accounting in Payroll.

iManual published by United Nations DOS/CDOTSPDF version of the manual may become outdated. Please always consult this site to get the most updated information.

Page 101 of 606

Additional Functions

The following additional functions are available:

- If you have used the validity end date of the infotype record to determine the runtime of the loan, and have entered a payment amount, the system can calculate the repayment or annuity installment. Choose Calculate Installment.

The longer the validity period of the loan and the higher the interest rate, the longer the calculation of the repayment or annuity installment takes.

- If you have calculated a repayment or annuity installment, and created a payment, you can let the system calculate the validity period of the loan. Choose Calculate End Date. The system displays the calculated end date as the validity end date of the infotype record.

When several infotype records exist for a loan, for example, because the repayment installment has changed over time, the functions Calculate Installment and Calculate End Date are available only in the last infotype record.

5.22. IT0487 Security/ Medical Clearance

Onboarding

This infotype stores data pertaining to the staff member's security clearance, medical clearance and background screening. It can be created prior to executing a PA in order to request medical clearance. So always check with the onboarding team whether the medical clearance request has already been submitted in inspira.

If the medical clearance has already been requested by the onboarding team in inspira, you must skip this infotype.

It consists of the three following sections:
• Clearance Information
• Remarks
• Additional fields

Reason for release

As a result of improvements to the interface between Umoja and EarthMed, additional information is required when submitting Medical Clearance requests. Infotype 0487 now includes a Duty Station field, which must be completed with the personnel subarea code for the duty station at which the staff member will be working. This field is required for both onboarding and change of duty station medical clearances.

Follow the Preboard Request Medical Clearance procedure documented in the Onboarding job aid.
On infotype 0487 (Create Security/Medical Clearance) select MCLR for Clearance Type, and the values for Clearance Category and Application Status appropriate for the staff member you are processing; and enter or search for the Duty Station (Personnel Subarea) at which the Staff Member will be working. When searching using the Duty Station Text field, the * wild card character can be used.

It is mandatory to complete this field even though you can currently validate and save the record without providing a value for Duty Station. A change will soon be implemented making Duty Station a required field.

5.23. IT0509 Activity with Higher Rate of Pay

A Higher Duty is when an employee is required to work at a higher position for a specific period of time and in turn receives the difference between the nominal and higher duty's salary as an Allowance. The infotype enables you to store the following details required for administration of Higher Duties:

- Get the new organizational details of the higher duty.
- Get higher duty details.
- Get the new pay scale structures of the higher duty.
- Get the assignment details.
- Simulation screen to display the estimated allowance.

Use

All the information stored in this infotype is used to calculate the payment for higher duties by comparing the nominal salary with the higher duties salary, and generating the difference; this will be the payment for higher duties.

For example, if the employee's Higher Duties salary is $34,746 and Nominal salary is $24,746. Higher Duties Allowance will be $10,000, which is the difference between the Higher Duties salary and the Nominal salary.

The Activity with Higher Rate (0509) infotype is divided into the following groups of data:

General

In this tab, you record:

- Reason why employee of higher duty position is absent and position has to be filled.
- Percentage the employee receives based on the higher duty performed. The Higher Duty allowance amount is paid based on the percentage specified in this field. For example, if the employee works 60% on Higher Duty and 40% on nominal, then this field has to be specified with 60. So, the amount for higher duty is paid for 60%.
- Percentage of cost to be borne by the nominal cost centre. While a person is performing higher duty it might be required to distribute the person's costs between nominal cost center and higher duty cost center. The relevant nominal cost center percentage is to be entered in this field.
- Indicates whether you want to pay the employee for full day even if the employee only

iManual published by United Nations DOS/CDOTSPDF version of the manual may become outdated. Please always consult this site to get the most updated information.

worked for half a day. For example, if an employee works for half a day in the higher duty position, he will be paid for the full day.

- Indicator whether employee is not paid for the higher duty if he works for less than half a day in this position. For example, an employee works for less than half a day in the higher duty position. If the Count actual period of performance radio button is chosen, you can select this checkbox. In this case, the employee is not paid for the higher duty.

Assignment

In this tab, you record whether you want to make assignment by position or by number. Maintain the personnel number of the person for whom the employee is going to perform higher duty. Either this field or the HD Position field.

Choose the Only Wage types IT 0008 radio button if you want the system to calculate the higher duty allowance based on the direct valuation. That means, the basic pay data is read from Basic pay infotype (0008) of the higher duty personnel number while computing the higher duty allowance.

Higher Duty

In this tab, you record new organizational details such as personnel area, personnel subarea, employee group and so on.

Nominal

In this tab, you record the details such as position, pay scale type, pay scale area and so on.

Estimated HDA

In this tab, you record the employee's higher duty salary and nominal salary.

5.31. IT2001 Absences

n this infotype, you record periods during an employee's planned working time in which he or she is not on-site and is also not working for the company.

- Employees' absences
- Leave
- Illness with certificate
- Time off from overtime

Employees' absences may have different significances for your enterprise.For example, absences such as leave or incapacity to work have different effects on valuation and payment of the absence times and on statistics and evaluations.

You use a separate absence type to record each type of absence that has an independent meaning and is to be processed specially.

An absence type is a subtype of the Absences infotype (2001).When you customize the system, you can make different specifications for the entry and valuation of each absence type, thus enabling the system to carry out automatically the required processing for the absence.

The Paid Leave and Unpaid Leave absence type always have to be valuated differently. Paid Leave is remunerated and is deducted from a leave entitlement.Unpaid leave is not deducted from an absence quota and leads to a reduction in payment for employees who receive a fixed monthly salary, for example.

The various absence types also have common features: For example, some concern employees' time off and have to be approved by a supervisor.Because they have common features, you can specify that they are handled in the same way for recording, valuating, or running reports.To do so, you group the absence types when you set up the system.For example, you can have three groups of absences for which different information has to be recorded:

Absences that do not require special processing

- Time off for wedding
- Illness without continued pay
- Unpaid leave
- Absences that are deducted from an employee's absence entitlement

5.32. IT2006 Absence Quotas

You use this infotype to manage time accounts that represent employees' absence entitlements or time credits. The time accounts contain a particular number of days or hours during which employees are permitted to be off work.

You can use the infotype to manage the following time accounts, for example:

- Employees' annual leave
- Time in lieu accounts, containing hours of overtime for which employees are permitted to claim compensatory time off
- Paid and unpaid absence entitlements, such as for illness or other life events

Accrual and deduction of absence quotas

Absence quotas can be stored in the system in the following ways:

- You can enter them manually
- The system can propose a default when an employee is hired
- The system can accrue them automatically

An employee can claim an absence quota by:

- Requesting an absence such as leave
    - In this case, you record an absence in the Absences infotype (2001). The absence is deducted from the quota.
    - Alternatively, employees can record or request their own absences using a Web application.
- Requesting remuneration for the times
    - In this case, you record a compensation. The compensation is deducted from the quota. For more information, see Time Quota Compensation Infotype (0416) .

When an employee claims time from a quota, the system deducts the requested time from the quota until it is used up. The quota can only be deducted further if the Customizing settings stipulate that the quota can also be deducted up to a particular negative number.

Absence quota type

Absence quotas with an identical content, such as leave and time-off entitlements, are grouped iManual published by United Nations DOS/CDOTSPDF version of the manual may become outdated. Please always consult this site to get the most updated information.

into an absence quota type in Customizing. Absence quota types are subtypes of the Absence Quotas infotype (2006). Time accounts are managed in hours or days (Unit field), according to the absence quota type of the quota from which the absence is deducted.

Validity and deduction period

Absence quotas are only valid for a particular validity period, for example, the leave year or the month in which overtime hours were worked. The deduction period stipulates when a quota can be deducted. The deduction period need not be the same as the validity period.

Intervals of absence quotas

You assign absence quotas by defining a total entitlement an employee has to an absence for a validity and deduction period.

You can specify clock times to stipulate that only partial-day absences within this time frame may be deducted from the quota.

Absence quotas accrued in time evaluation

Absence quotas can be accumulated automatically in time evaluation. You cannot change automatically accrued absence quotas manually in the Absence Quotas infotype (2006). Instead, you use the Quota Corrections infotype (2013).

Recording absence quotas

A variety of mechanisms to simplify the recording of absence quotas. When you create an absence quota, the system can fill particular fields with default values according to your system settings. If necessary, you can overwrite the default values. It is important that you set the validity period of the record before you create it.

Time account statuses

To aid data entry when you record absences or compensation, the system displays the absence quotas that can be deducted on the current date, with their deduction period. Additional time account statuses for the absence quota provide information on the current deduction status:

- Entitlement – Specifies an employee's total entitlement to an absence entitlement for a particular period, for example, leave/year or compensation hours/month

iManual published by United Nations DOS/CDOTSPDF version of the manual may become outdated. Please always consult this site to get the most updated information.

Page 126 of 606

- Remainder – Specifies the available entitlement for which the employee can still deduct absences or have compensated.
- Requested – Specifies the portion of the entitlement for which absences have been recorded, for past or future dates

In the Leave Request Web application , the Requested field specifies the portion of the entitlement for which absences or compensation have been recorded for future dates.

- Compensated – Specifies the portion of the entitlement that has already been compensated
- Used – Specifies the portion of the entitlement that has already been compensated and/or deducted by an absence

5.33. IT2013 Quota Corrections

This Infotype is used to change the Accrual of the Absences by Time evaluation on a particular day. The infotype information entered is taken into consideration when you run the Time Evaluation next time.

There are three options in order to Change the Accrual Entitlement.

Increase Generated Entitlement.

This option is to increase the Generated Entitlement of the Absence on a particular day with a constant value.

Reduce Generated Entitlement.

5.34. IT3244 NPO Entitlement Country and City

In this infotype, you can maintain residential details of the employee, both for family and permanent places of residence.

This infotype has the following subtypes:

- Family place of residence (FPR)
- Permanent place of residence (PPR)

Structure – For each subtype, you must maintain details such as Country, City, Airport Code.

5.35. IT3344 NPO (National Professional Officers) Assignment

This infotype stores data pertaining to the staff member's assignment.
This infotype cannot be skipped.

It consists of the three following sections:
• Organizational Assignment: non-editable information related to the characteristics of the Position derived from infotype (0001).
• Movement/Travel Requirements: indicates whether the Organization arranges for the Staff Member's travel and displays the entitlements associated with the travel. This information is for record purposes only and does not generate payment of these entitlements to the Staff Member.
• Position Occupancy Details: includes the Expiration and Position Occupancy Clock.
The Expiration field is used to enter the end date of the temporary movement (assignment, loan or secondment) or SLWOP and only appears in Temporary Movements PAs. The Position Occupancy Clock indicator provides a way to record Staff Members' position occupancy durations. It is one of the key factors in determining their participation in managed mobility.

Reason for release
Position Occupancy Detail is an enhanced configuration necessitated by the implementation of Managed mobility (ref. Section 15.2 of ST/AI/2016/1 dated 28 December 2015 on Staff selection and managed mobility system). The objective of this enhancement is to provide a way to record Staff Members' position occupancy durations, which will be one of the key factors in determination of Staff Members' participation in managed mobility.

- Section 1 provides the definition of Position Occupancy Limit:
    ◦ Maximum position occupancy limit: the maximum period of time a Staff Member is normally allowed to serve in a rotational position. The maximum position occupancy limit shall be seven years for duty stations classified as H and A, four years for duty stations classified as B and C and three years for duty stations classified as D and E, as established by the International Civil Service Commission;
    ◦ Minimum position occupancy limit: the minimum period of time a Staff Member is normally required to serve in a rotational position prior to choosing to participate in a managed mobility exercise. The minimum position occupancy limit shall be two years of continuous service in a position in duty stations classified as H, A, B and C, and one year of continuous service in duty stations classified as D and E as established by the International Civil Service Commission

- Section 16.1 to 16.6 further states that

Procedure Change

IT 3344 is part of the infogroup when processing a good number of HR PAs, namely onboarding (initial appointment, reappointment, reinstatement), permanent movement (reassignment, transfer, promotion) temporary movement (assignment including temporary grade, temporary promotion, interagency loan), loan w/in Umoja entities and secondment, contract extension/renewal, modify post incumbency, special leave without pay, or separation.

The Position Occupancy detail is a new mandatory section in the NPO Assignment infotype (IT3344) in Umoja's PA module specifically designed to record how the current movement affects the position occupancy limit for purposes of implementation of managed mobility.

New section in IT3344 – Position Occupancy Detail

- HR Partners who have access/means to update IT3344 will be required to maintain this section.
- In IT3344, both fields Expiration and Position Occupancy Clock are mandatory, and under the new configuration, the system requires users to update these two fields first before completing other sections in the infotype. The expiration field is used to enter the end date of the temporary movement (assignment, loan or secondment) or SLWOP and only appears in these PAs. If the expiration field appears, start with this field and then proceed to the Position Occupancy Detail. If there is no expiration field, start with the Position Occupancy Detail. If you do not complete them in this order, you will get an error message

Position Occupancy Clock – This field is used to specify how the current movement affects the position occupancy duration.

Options:

- Reset – Used for
  - onboarding (initial appointment, reappointment and incoming interagency movements); or
  - permanent movement (transfer, promotion and reassignment only) PAs to show that the Staff Member occupies a new position which resets the position occupancy clock count to 0.

When this is selected, a new position occupancy number will be automatically assigned by the system upon saving the infotype. This number serves to track the length of the post occupancy even if it spans over various HR movements.

- Resume/Continue – Used upon
    - contract extension/renewal on the same position or when the position changes for administrative purposes but the functions continue to be the same;
    - start of a temporary movement (assignment, loan or secondment) or SLWOP with a duration of less than a year; or
    - return from temporary movement or SLWOP, regardless of the duration to signal that the position occupancy clock continues from the count initiated on a previous position.
    When this option is chosen, the Position Occupancy Number field (containing the Umoja generated number created to track assignments) becomes active for selection. Click dropdown to display a pop-up window displaying all previous IT3344's Position occupancies, if any, together with the movement type (PM, TA, SL, etc.), and the Start and Expiration date of the period, plus the duration (in months & days).

When you select Resume/Continue, always pick the last record that has an expiration date of 31.12.9999 and then click ✅ to confirm selection. The Umoja generated selected position occupancy number will then display in the Position Occupancy Number field.

- Suspend – Used upon
    - start of temporary movements or SLWOP with a duration of one year or more; or
    - extension of temporary movements or SLWOP when the total period of assignment or SLWOP adds up to one year or more to temporarily suspend the position occupancy clock.

- Not applicable – Used for Staff Members who are not subject to managed mobility. This includes employee group-subgroup 2 through 6:
    - 2 (local staff);
    - 3 (Conference Language Staff);
    - 4 (WAE);
    - 5 (Special Staff);
    - 6 (R/NR Loan to UN);

As well as certain staff within employee group 1:

- JPOs

- 1-GI (International GS);
- All international staff with temporary appointments; and
- P2 and P3 international language staff.

Not Applicable should be selected for all separation PAs

Once the Position Occupancy Detail information has been completed as per the instruction above, complete the remaining fields on this infotype following the standard instructions for the PA you areprocessing as indicated in the relevant job aids.
